The Darien Canal.

From the report of the Secretary of the Navy we extract the following paragraphs in relation to the surveys of the Darien Canal:

The survey of the Isthmus of Darien, under Commander T. O. Selfridge, which had been interrupted by the advent of the rainy season last year, has been successfully conducted in spite of the great obstacles met in making way through a dense and almost impenetrable wilderness. The Guard and Nipsic were detailed for this service upon the Atlantic coast, and the Resaca upon the Pacific. Commander Selfridge sailed from New York in December last. His attention for the past year has been directed chiefly to that portion of the isthmus bordering on the valley of the Altrato, known properly as the Tuyra and Napipi routes. The route of the Tuyra and Altrato rivers had been reported upon most favorably by former explorers and hopes were entertained that these reports might prove true. Five months were spent in the examination of this route, a line of levels 120 miles long was run from ocean to ocean, and though the divide in one portion was found to be not over 400 feet in height, the very broken nature of the country which was developed seems to render this portion of the isthmus impracticable for this enterprise. The survey of the Napipi route has been productive of far more favorable results, and has illustrated the possibility of a ship canal between the two oceans. The line adopted by Commander Selfridge commences at the mouth of the Atrato, in the Gulf of Darien, ascends that river 150 miles to the mouth of the Napipi, and thence across in the valley of the latter, to the Pacific ocean, at Cupica Bay. The Atrato is navigable the whole of this distance for ships of the largest size, having a width of 1,500 feet, and a depth nowhere less than 30 feet. The actual length of the necessary canal is 31 2-10 miles, the distance from Atrato river to Cupica Bay, of which 23 miles is a flat plain, with a rise of 90 feet, and no difficulties of construction. The remaining eight miles present the only engineering obstacles; here the hills rise to a height of 600 feet and descend almost precipitously to the Pacific.

Commander Selfridge's estimates of cost are based upon a canal 120 feet wide and 26 feet deep. It is proposed to lock up to a summit level of 100 feet, at which point the canal is fed by the Napipi river with a volume, at its lowest stage, of over 500,000 cubic feet per hour—a quantity which can be doubled by a feeder three miles long. The eight miles beyond the summit level include a cut averaging 125 feet in depth and a tunnel five miles long. The successful operation of the Mont Cenis and Hoosac tunnels, with the modern improvements in drilling machines and explosives, seem to solve successfully the problem of great tunnels, which now cost but little more than open cuts. The total cost of such a work in this country is liberally estimated at $95,000,000, which, adding 25 per cent. for contingencies, makes a total of $125,000,000 for contingencies. This route presents not only the great advantage of most excellent harbors at each terminus, but its low cost, compared with other lines, its construction in rock, requiring but a small outlay for annual repairs, the proximity of the heaviest portion of the work to the Pacific ocean, the absence of swamps, and the comparative healthiness of the position, give it a prominence which repays the cost and labor of the expedition. These surveys, in addition to developing this excellent route, have, in clearing away the doubts and ignorance hanging over the Isthmus of Darien, in the fixing of its geographical positions, and of giving positive knowledge of the interior, its inhabitants, products, rivers and mountains, added much to the general information of the scientific world.

H. W. Beecher on Death.

Beecher discoursed recently in his lecture room about the various ideas of death. He did not think it an evidence of special Christian grace to be willing to die. He didn't think it natural for the young and those full of the activities of life to desire to die. It is better to be willing to live and do the duties of life. When Paul said it was better to depart he was an old man in prison. If an October pippin says it is ready to drop, is that any reason a little green apple in June should be ready? It is the business of green apples to get ripe. All the representations of the New Testament about death are full of cheer and hope. For Paul to die was to go to Christ. Dying is not growing short of breath and feeble of pulse; it is flying up to the All-loving Soul of the universe. It is going to sweet companionship. We struggle on through the world, finding little companionship, but we go to the spirits of just men made perfect. We go where all the conditions lift us up to a realm of nobility. There all is in concord. There is no selfishness, no hardness and crudeness and rudeness of revenge; all are working up with one sweet impulse with the great creative force of divine love. These thoughts ring in my soul like the bell of a far off city drawing me thitherward. Dying is the easiest thing men do. The suffering is in life; but, as a rule, men die as easily as a door turns upon its hinges. Dying is going home; not to supineness, not to Oriental luxury; but to supreme activity, where every part is developed and cultured in the realm of love. Bless God for the privilege of dying! My brother Charles, who was always in a dying mood, once congratulated my father upon the fact that he couldn't live much longer. "Humph," said the old man, "I don't thank any of my boys to talk to me in that way. I don't want to die. If I had my choice, and it was right to choose, I would fight the battle all over." "Father," continued Beecher, "was a war-horse, and after he was turned out to pasture, whenever he heard the sound of a trumpet he wanted the saddle and bridle."

General Grant and Religious Sects.

The Boston Pilot (Catholic) vouches for the truth of a letter published in its columns which reflects great credit on General Grant. It seems that a set of super-serviceable zealots called on the President to persuade him into the dismissal of a revenue official, on the ground that he was an Irishman and a Roman Catholic. The President listened to their story, and the writer in the Pilot tells the conclusion in this way:

"I understand that," said the President, after taking a few long draws at his cigar; "but I don't see what a man's religion or nationality has to do with a faithful performance of his official duties. Gentlemen, had you been with me at Vicksburg, and in the battles of the Wilderness, where regiments and divisions, composed almost entirely of Irish Catholic soldiers, were fighting bravely, and falling dead and wounded by hundreds and thousands in defense of our cause, I don't suppose you would have urged their discharge on the ground that they were Irishmen and Catholics. Neither can I listen to a proposal to turn a faithful clerk out of office for such a cause, particularly, gentlemen, when I know that this same clerk saved his colors from falling into the enemy's hands at the risk of his life, on our march to Richmond—in fact, I know all about him, for he was one of my soldiers, and deserves well of his country."

The Possum Policy, or, the proposition to play possum in the coming Presidential election, is evidently "no go" with the masses of the Democracy. They will not have this thing. The party managers, therefore, would do well to call a national convention for a bona fide new departure.—N. Y. Herald.

INTERIOR CALIFORNIA DISPATCHES.

YREKA, Jan. 11.—Snow fell here last night to the depth of something over a foot. The weather being warm it has nearly disappeared. On the mountains between here and Scott valley it is about four feet deep.

The telegraph line is still down on Scott Mountain.

No stage from the South since Monday evening. We hear there has been another freshet in the lower rivers.

The Fastest Time.

The following letter has been addressed to Mr. C. F. Mottley, of Newark:

SOPUS FARM, WARREN Co., N. J.,
November 20, 1871.

MY DEAR UNCLE:—Having seen in the papers what is thought to be a wonderful performance of Mr. Bleecker's carrier pigeon, and as I know you are deeply interested in all that relates to these birds, I send you the performance of one of the Bagdad stock, which you were so kind as to present me three years ago. The bird is perfectly formed, weighs sixteen and three-quarter ounces, head rather small, base of bill much enlarged and corrugated, even for a carrier pigeon, color dark slate, stands superbly erect, showing his full pectoral muscles. I had tried him a number of times to test his qualities, and choosing such days as threatened storm, knowing that the instinct of all birds, and carrier pigeons particularly causes them to seek their common resorts more rapidly at such times.

These experiments ranged from 140 to 200 miles from Sopus Farm. The bird would generally make the time at the rate of two miles to the minute, being twice the time of the swiftest wild duck, and frequently it was so great as to strip many of the feathers from its head and breast; the friction of the air being at that speed so considerable. I then thought this must be the limit of speed for any bird. Such velocity gives a resistance to the air sufficient to denude the bird of its feathers, as mine had proved, and I supposed that any increase would make the wings inoperative, because the effort to bring them forward for another stroke would meet with resistance sufficient to tear them from their sockets, if the comparatively weak muscles for that purpose had more power than they have. Even if the wings could be brought forward, the velocity with which the pigeon was moving would be equal to the velocity of the stroke of the wing, and as a consequence the wing would have no force to act upon. This, however, was nothing but philosophic theory.

The fact has been proved, as seriously stated by Mr. Bleecker, that his bird had made two hundred and twenty miles an hour, a rate of speed almost four miles a minute—one-third as fast as sound flies. I thought if Mr. Bleecker's bird could do this, mine could do more. Carrier pigeons of such purity of blood as those treasured by the Caliph of Bagdad, and presented to you as an especial favor, were not to be beaten by any of an unknown pedigree. Nothing like blood, and that from Bagdad. I prepared for the effort. I fed my bird for thirteen days on the hearts cut from grains of yellow flint corn. This part of the grain has the highest stimulating power, because it contains the largest amount of nitrogen, and that is what makes muscle and brain and gives most strength and endurance. The bird soon showed the effect of this treatment. It grew strong and restless. At the end of the thirteen days, having prepared every convenience for the occasion, I started from Sopus Farm for Sandusky, Ohio, on Lake Erie, just four hundred miles in an air line from my farm.

Outside of the town, on an elevated piece of ground, precisely at 1 o'clock P. M., November 14, scarcely any air stirring, the bird, having the precise moment of his starting written on tissue paper and fastened by warm gutta percha under the lappings of his back feathers, was thus equipped for his long journey, and cast off. He arose instantly to a considerable height, and darted off with a speed which was hard to trace, in an east by south direction. Leaving a chronometer at home in the hands of a friend, which was timed exactly as the one by which the bird was started, I knew there would be perfect accuracy in noting the arrival at the pigeon house.

I went to the telegraph office in Sandusky, and waited to hear the result of the experiment. My friend was to let me know the instant the bird returned. Sopus farm is about fifteen minutes' walk from a telegraph station on the Belvidere Railroad. At two o'clock and twenty minutes the telegram came: "Bird arrived at two o'clock precisely, all right.—R. P. Smith." I left Sandusky on the first train, and reached home on the 18th.

I found the greatest excitement had followed the arrival of the pigeon. Mr. Smythe told me that at precisely two o'clock the bird came like an arrow into his house. His movement was more like a blue streak than a well-defined bird. He seemed but little exhausted, although nearly all the feathers were off his body, except the small patch held on his back by the gutta percha which fastened the note. A few miles more would have worn every feather from his wings, and then he would have to depend upon the momentum already acquired to carry him on his journey, and to steer by a tailless rump, and perhaps be killed in attempting to light.

When my pigeon has grown a new suit of feathers, I will match him for $1,000 against any carrier pigeon that has not beaten this distance in an equal time. There shall be no restriction as to weight carried or manner of carrying.

As you have always taken an interest in these Bagdad carriers, I could not suffer you to remain unacquainted with this extraordinary performance. Ever yours,

J. P. MOTTLEY.

OREGON.

An Albany game-cock was taken to Eugene, where he whipped a rival game cock for $100. Albany sports are exultant.

Capt. Cochran, who for many years has run steamboats on the upper Wallamet, has bought a farm and will till the soil in future.

A handsome monument has been completed at Salem to be erected to the memory of the late S. T. Church. It is a fluted column, broken off at the top, and stands on a pedestal adorned with the emblems of Odd Fellowship and Masonry.

Scio Democrats have held a meeting and resolved that they want no passive policy. Also, that "the party, upon its access into power, stands pledged, by the potent pulsation that throbs in the heart of every true Democrat, echoed in the spoken and written words of its time-honored leaders, to repeal the obnoxious amendments and all subsequent legislation pertaining thereto."

Mr. Philip Foster, who lives in Clackamas county at the gateway of the Cascade mountains, is one of the best known men in Oregon. He has been a life-long Democrat. In a letter to the Bulletin he says that he is "no modern Democrat," that the managers of that party "shift and turn so often that they have lost all the land marks and have got into a fog," that they "seem to be willing to become anything and everything to keep power in Oregon," and that they "have squandered school funds and swamp lands."

A Democratic Club has been organized at Albany. The Register reports: The meeting was organized by the election of Dr. Alexander as Chairman, and M. V. Brown as Secretary. The third Democrat present, Capt. Shields, [illegible] fering to "ratify," and there being no further business to transact, the club adjourned with one or two healthy old cheers for the success of its officers. LATER—Since writing the above we learn that our first information was incorrect as to the numbers present on the occasion. It is now asserted positively that there were at least five Republicans and three Democrats present: that a temporary organization was had, and that the meeting adjourned to meet again at 1 o'clock on the afternoon of the 20th inst. The proceedings throughout were characterized by great gravity—in fact "gravity was no name for it." [illegible] with the funeral.

A New York man has attempted suicide four or five times. He cuts his throat from year to year, but never succeeds.

Stephen says he would rather be laughed at for not getting married, than to be unable to laugh because he is married.

No people under heaven can excel the Americans in the manly art of sitting on the fence and seeing eighteen men play ball.

A man in Newark kept marrying, in order to get a suitable wife. After four unsuccessful trials he blew out the cavity where the brains ought to have been.

"Excuse this bit of sarcasm," said Smith to Jones, "but I must say that you are an unprincipled liar and scoundrel." "Pardon this bit of irony," said Jones to Smith, as he knocked him over with a poker.

News from Sitka.

The steamer from Sitka brings the following summary, which has been furnished to the Tribune:

The municipal election took place on the 20th of November. The Hon. William H. Wood was re-elected Mayor, and Messrs. Cohen, Cochran, Shirpser, Halstead and Barne, elected Councilmen for the ensuing year. Henry Fride was elected Treasurer in the place of George R. McKnight.

The storehouse of Mr. Buller, agent for the San Francisco Fish Company, was broken open on the night of the 10th of December and eight chests of tea stolen, which was on the following day tracked to the saloon of William Hector, where seven of the missing chests were found secreted.

On the night of the 15th of December the bonded warehouse was likewise broken open and thirteen cans of alcohol stolen. The thieves conveyed the alcohol to the saloon of one Alexander Vassenus, situated near the "Bee Hive." During the night Vassenus or Brown, as he is called, fearing detection, concluded that he would quietly remove from each can about one gallon, resolder them nicely, and at early daybreak put on an honest face and expose the whole thing, save mentioning the fact last mentioned, which he forgot to do. Vassenus, in the story he told, was believed, and the two enlisted men whom he implicated as having brought the cans to him were promptly arrested. Unfortunately for Mr. Vassenus, he had called in the services of a Russian tinsmith during the night to resolder the cans and did not pay him extra pay for the work performed at such an unseasonable hour of the night, so the smith felt aggrieved and made the exposure. Vassenus and the two enlisted men who are charged with the theft are in confinement awaiting trial.

The thirteen cans of alcohol, just referred to, had scarcely been replaced back in the warehouse when a second attack was made upon the store room, and this time in broad daylight, the thieves securing two cans of the alcohol, five bottles of whisky and about ten dozen bottles of porter, of which about one half was recovered, having been found secreted about the wood upon the wharf. It is supposed that two enlisted men composing the working party, while at work that morning about the building, took advantage of a rather slender looking lock which had been temporarily placed upon the storeroom, entered the room, removed the property, secreted it and resumed their work, but this is only surmised.

The men of Battery I, Second Artillery, gave the first grand opening ball of the season in the spacious rooms of the "Club-House," on the night of the 8th of December. The rooms were decorated with a profusion of bunting, the supper table well supplied, music good and nothing wanting, so they thought, even to their fair Russian partners, to make the evening one of rare enjoyment for a soldier located in Alaska. But the men of Battery C, Second Artillery, not to be outdone by those of Battery I, also gave a "social hop" on the evening of December 10th in the same rooms. Nearly all the men of both companies were present, and a finer looking body of men could scarcely be met. The tables, which were well supplied at the first hop, now fairly groaned with their weight. The Russian partners, numbering some fifty or more, added zest to the occasion, while "they danced all night 'till broad daylight."

The traders doing business at Sitka are complaining bitterly of the scarcity of furs coming into that market this season. This is due to the fact that large quantities of the most valuable furs are obtained direct from the Indians by traders from Fort Simpson. In the month of November, some half-breeds sent over from that place, with canoes loaded with blankets and whisky, secured from the Chilcat tribe nearly every desirable skin—giving them, in exchange, such articles as rifles, whisky, blankets, etc. It is a source of regret that this illicit traffic is not broken up, so that the rich furs—particularly of the central portion of the Territory—may fall into American hands; that our statistical tables may be made out correctly, to remind those who may be living in a more austral clime that the purchase of Russian America by the United States Government is not likely to prove a bad bargain.

Senator Wilson tried hard to have Sumner restored to his rightful place at the head of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, but only seven Senators could be found to support him. It is believed in Washington that the President is sincerely desirous of friendly relations with the Massachusetts Senator, but that Sumner will neither make nor acknowledge any advances towards such a result.

The One-Term Principle.

[From the New York Times.]

From present indications, it would appear that the platform of the disaffected Republicans who oppose the re-election of Gen. Grant is to consist of one principle, and that is to be the "one term" principle. It is natural for men who have but one idea to try and make the most of it; but there is danger of transforming it into a hobby, when it is sure to become a nuisance. We see no occasion for the strife that is now going on among the sore-heads, as to who has been the earliest and most persistent advocate of the one-term principle. They all boast that it was first enunciated by Washington, who, however, failed to practice it himself, and as the people have paid little regard to it since, and have deliberately repudiated it in five different instances, it would [illegible] made much headway in popular estimation.

Although there are some plausible arguments in favor of limiting a successful aspirant for the Presidency to one term, [illegible] very strong common-sense objection, which to most minds is conclusive, against imposing any such limit in the fundamental law of the land. It would be an [illegible] upon the people to [illegible] certain unforeseen contingency which might arise, and which is very likely to arise, from doing the very thing they would most desire to do. In a country where the people elect their own rulers by a popular vote, it [illegible] like an absurdity for them to establish a constitutional provision that would prevent them, or their successors, from electing the man of their choice. It would be a denial of a fundamental principle of popular government. It might happen, as it has happened in one or two instances, that the people would be lucky enough to hit upon the "very best" man, in their estimation, for President, and when they have been thus fortunate, and when the man of their choice has filled all their expectations, are they to be prohibited from re-electing him for another term? How would the Republicans of the country have liked it, if they had been prevented by a constitutional provision from re-electing Lincoln in 1864? How would the Democrats have liked it, if they had been prohibited from re-electing their great idol, Jackson, in 1832? There is [illegible] thing puerile in this proposition that the people should bind themselves not to do, in the future, what the future may prove to be the very best thing they can do.

And what are the arguments in favor of such a proposition? The chief, and almost the only one, so far as we have been able to discover, is, that the President may, and sometimes does, use the patronage of the Government [illegible] to promote his re-election to office. Now, in the first place, the influence of this Government patronage is immensely overrated; but, if it were ten times as great as it is, it would be utterly powerless to secure the re-election of a President who was not the choice of the people. John Tyler was, probably, the most notable instance of a President who made use of the entire patronage of his office with the sole view of securing a re-election; and what was the result? When the time arrived for nominating his successor, he was left with scarcely an omnibus load of supporters. So far from Government patronage being an element of strength to the President who desires a renomination, it is his chief source of weakness, and that, too, irrespective of the manner in which it is used. For every office in the gift of the President there are at least a score of applicants, and while the successful one may be a champion of the political aspirations of his chief, the chances are ten to one that the remainder will be very lukewarm friends, if not open enemies. We doubt whether any man who has had experience in the Presidency, or in any other high office, would not infinitely prefer to be divested of all patronage, however, if his sole object was to [illegible] re-election. Take the case of Gen. Grant for example. It is a well known fact, and has been substantially admitted over and over again in the Tribune, that the sole [illegible] with Gen. [illegible] the Republicans of this city and State has grown out of the manner in which he has distributed the public patronage. If there had been no patronage at his disposal, there would not be a dozen Republicans in the State to-day opposed to his renomination. The same is true, to a greater or less degree, all over the country. If all the facts could be made known, it would be found that nearly every one of the leading men in the anti-Grant combination who, for lack of a better plea, [illegible] ly riding the "one-term" hobby, has some personal grievance to complain of, growing out of the distribution of public patronage.

Portland, Dec. 14th, 1871.

The Daily Oregonian.

SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 13, 1872.

Improvement of the Columbia River.

Senator Corbett is fully awake, as usual, to the interests of Oregon. On the 14th ult. he submitted the following resolution to the Senate, which was unanimously agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary of War be instructed to furnish to the Senate any information on file in his Department as to the cost of the necessary improvement of the Columbia river near and below the mouth of the Wallamet, and the removal of obstructions in the Columbia river above Celilo, Oregon.

We may remark here that very full information in regard to the condition of the Columbia and Wallamet rivers, and the necessity of improving them for purposes of navigation was forwarded some time ago to the Chief Engineer of the War Department by Major Robert of the Engineer Corps, who has charge of that business here. This information, we are able to state, was of a character to supply just what was needed to enable the Department to understand the condition of these rivers and the wants of Oregon commerce. Favorable action by the Department may be expected on the recommendations presented by Major Robert.

Besides the information heretofore furnished to the Department in regard to the lower Columbia and Wallamet rivers, Major Robert has, as we are informed, recently forwarded a statement of the results of his examination of the upper Columbia from Celilo to Wallula, and an estimate of the amount of money that will be required to clear the [illegible] of obstructions to navigation.

Senator Corbett's resolution calling on the Secretary of War for information as to the cost of necessary improvements on the lower Columbia and Wallamet rivers is preparatory to efforts which will be made by him to get a suitable appropriation for that purpose. That he will be successful there is every reason to hope and believe.

The "Reform" Senators.

It is shown by the New York Times in a caustic article that the [illegible] of certain so-called "reform" Republicans [illegible] Grant arises simply from a quarrel about the distribution of offices. For instance, Senator Tipton of Nebraska was friendly to President Grant till he lost all his patronage in his State, and now he complains that he has not even a post office left him by the Administration. Of course he is a "reformer." In a recent speech in the Senate he frankly confessed the cause of his hostility to Grant, and his desire of such "civil service reform" as would give him back his patronage.

So with Senator Schurz. The Times shows that he has often recommended for office persons who were not fit to hold office, and that he is now a [illegible] his recommendations could not always be complied with. And Senator Trumbull, with all his good parts, is in very much the same position.

Senator Fenton, of New York, is one of the so-called "reformers," yet it is notorious that he has always been identified in his own State with all that is most corrupting and debasing to political life. His recommendations could not be complied with by the President, and he has turned "reformer" with the rest.

That many improvements might be made in the methods of the civil service is unquestionable. All the Senators who recently joined in the covert attack on the Administration, [illegible] that attack under pretended zeal for reform, have not only heretofore done much to control official appointments, and thus continue abuses which they now declaim [illegible], but they have often given reform a stab in the back by recommending unfit persons for office. The time is ripe for changes in the method of public appointments, and President Grant must have the credit of being the first President who ever recommended such a measure, though it cannot be [illegible] that the public service has suffered more than from the old system during his administration than during that of any of his immediate predecessors.

The meeting of the Republican National Committee to fix the time and place of holding the National Convention was to have taken place on the 11th inst. It was supposed at last advices that Philadelphia would be the place selected. A movement, however, has been made at Cincinnati looking to the holding of both National Conventions in that city. The Common Council have offered the free use of the Exposition building for the purpose, and a subscription has been started among the hotel keepers, railroad men and merchants [illegible] to pay [illegible] which are [illegible] at $20,000 for each Convention. [illegible] is centrally located, and is easy of access from all parts of the Union.

It leaks out through the Roseburg Plaindealer that Gov. Grover has sent that rather self-important young man, "Hon. H. H. Gilfry, Private Secretary to his Excellency, the Governor of Oregon," to Washington on a mission connected with swamp and other lands. Mr. Gilfry is a dapper little gentleman who doubtless flatters himself that he will produce a sensation at Washington as a bearer of dispatches from the Governor of Oregon in behalf of the claims of our land rings. It is possible that before he gets back he will find how much he has overrated himself. In the business on which he is engaged a lift from Hercules wouldn't avail.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office has written to Gov. Grover that "no selection (of lands) by the State can be considered as finally approved until the same has been submitted to the Secretary of the Interior and by him approved." This is the position which we have hoped to see the General Land Office assume. It is something different from Gov. Grover's position. His [illegible] the Secretary to confirm all the selections made by our State ring, which, request, if complied with, would result in fraud in prodigious proportions.

The Herald keeps harping on its own allegation that the Senate of the United States, [illegible] investigation of Government affairs, voted down a resolution demanding such investigation. The truth is, the resolution was adopted. It was adopted in such a form as to require searching investigation, and all the amendments proposed by Trumbull and others were accepted. The Administration has nothing to conceal.

Says the New York Tribune: "The speech of the newly-appointed Attorney-General, the Hon. George H. Williams, not only gratified his fellow citizens of the Pacific States who congratulated him, but it will satisfy every patriotic man who reads it. The policy of the new chief of the Department of Justice, as indicated in his remarks, will be statesmanlike and dignified."

The Eight-Hour Law.

A joint resolution was offered in the Senate of the United States some days ago in relation to pay of laborers or workmen employed by or on behalf of the Government of the United States. Mr. Trumbull moved an amendment to rescind the eight-hour law. Mr. Corbett made these sensible remarks:

I think it is quite time that we repealed this eight-hour law. I think it has produced enough mischief already among our people, and particularly in the manufacturing districts, and in fact in all classes of mechanical labor where there is competition. There it proves to be a very great injury. Our mechanics who are laboring alongside of those engaged on public works work ten hours, and receive only the same wages that these people obtain who work eight hours. That creates great dissatisfaction, and it prevents improvements, and it has throughout the country prevented improvements and advancement of building throughout all our cities that I know anything of. It has put a stop to many works that were in progress. I think, if this bill is to be adopted now, it is a good time to repeal this law. I certainly will not vote for this bill unless this amendment is attached to it. In order to repeal this law, and to close this matter up, I am willing to vote for the bill with the amendment; without it I am opposed to the bill.

Mr. Trumbull, speaking in favor of his amendment, said:

None of us, I suppose, are opposed to the enactment and maintenance of any law that has a tendency to elevate labor and to relieve labor from improper burdens; but in this case our law has had no such effect. The men whom it was designed to benefit do not approve of it, as this letter shows. It produces unpleasant feelings between those who are employed in the Government service and work eight hours and those who are outside and work ten. The effect of the law has not been beneficial upon the laboring interests of the country. On the contrary, it has created alienation and bad feeling, and it has done no good. It has been construed differently at different places, as we now see by the bill which the Senator from Massachusetts has in charge, and I think it will be better for the Government, better for the laboring man, better for all concerned, to repeal the statute.

Gibraltar.

Gibraltar was taken from Spain by an English force in 1704. Recently it was announced by telegraph that the British Government had signified to Spain that it would receive propositions to surrender the fortress. This announcement was scarcely credited at the time, but we now have a copy of the correspondence. The Spanish Government wrote thus to the English Premier on the subject:

SIR: Several Spanish corporations intend memorializing the British Government for some equitable method of retroceding Gibraltar to Spain in conformity with the honor and position of both. Would the receipt of such a document be acceptable to your Excellency?

This answer was received:

[illegible] LONDON, Nov. 10, 1871.

SIR: Mr. Gladstone authorizes me to state in answer to yours of the 23d ult. that he will be glad to receive petitions with reference to the cession of Gibraltar. Respectfully,

J. L. GURDON.

A Tribute.

Before the sacred altar of thy beauty,
With wandering feet I hither come to kneel;
In silent gratitude and wordless duty,
Such as the true in faith alone can feel.

Then from thy threshold, dearest, do not spurn me,
A pilgrim to the music of thy shrine;
Not from its precincts with displeasure turn me,
Who never bowed at altar save at thine.

Unheralded I come once more before thee,
Unblessed from thy presence would depart;
Beseeching but in silence to adore thee,
And hide thy image deep within my heart—

Deep in my heart of hearts, obscure, unspoken,
But [illegible] with a [illegible]
Until it meets thee with a pledge [illegible]
Beautiful among the blest above.

One Hundred Years Ago.

[From the San Francisco Bulletin.]

One hundred and ten years ago there was not a single white man in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana or Illinois. Then, what is the most flourishing part of America was as little known as the country around the mysterious Mountains of the Moon. It was not until 1767 that Boone left his home in North Carolina to become the first settler in Kentucky. The first pioneer of Ohio did not settle until twenty years after this time. A hundred years ago Canada belonged to France, and the population did not exceed a million and a half of people. A hundred years ago the great Frederick of Prussia was performing those tremendous exploits which have made him immortal in military annals, and with his little monarchy was sustaining a single-handed combat with Russia, Austria and France, the three great powers of Europe, combined. Washington was a modest Virginian Colonel, and the great events in the history of the two worlds, in which these great but dissimilar men took part, were then scarcely foreshadowed. A hundred years ago the United States were the most loyal part of the British Empire, and on the political horizon no speck indicated the struggle which, within a score of years thereafter, established the great republic of the world. A hundred years ago there were but four newspapers in America. Steam engines had not been imagined, and railroads and telegraphs had not entered into the remotest conception of man. When we come to look back at it through the vista of history, we find that to the century just past has been allotted more important events, in their bearing upon the happiness of the world, than almost any other which has elapsed since the creation.

Failure of many of the most eminent physicians of San Francisco to cure a case of Rheumatism—Triumph of the Unk Weed Remedy.

MRS. M. C. WHITE,

TEACHER OF
ROBBINS' AMERICAN METHOD
OF THE
Pianoforte, Guitar and Organ.

RECENTLY FROM THE EAST, AND MORE RE-cently from San Francisco, is stopping at GEO. W. HILLMAN'S, No. 203 Second street, next to the New Congregational Church, where she would be glad to see all interested in music, and wish to learn to play in the shortest possible time. By this method a pupil sees at sight what the fingers are required to perform; giving a more thorough knowledge of harmony and thorough base; learning to play the Piano and Organ in one-half the time of the old method. Please give her an immediate call and inquire what the method is.

AN UNPREJUDICED PHYSICIAN INTERVIEWED.

Bold Opinions Truly Expressed.

POPULARITY IS NOT ALWAYS A proof of desert. Every newspaper man knows that many articles are engineered into temporary popularity that have no intrinsic merit whatever. It is an easy thing to make sweeping assertions and sow them broadcast in the columns of the public press. But there is a class of experienced and thoughtful birds not to be caught with chaff, like Captain Cuttle, they want "an opinion as is an opinion," in other words, the judgment of competent and disinterested authority, as a basis for their own.

Several of these cautious individuals having done us the honor to invite an expression of opinion in these columns on the properties of the much talked of Tonic known as PLANTATION BITTERS, we have taken the pains to obtain from a distinguished physician whose ability and integrity of purpose no one will venture to question, what may fairly be deemed a conclusive answer to the questions of our correspondents. Dr. Elias Kennedy Whitmarsh, as a surgeon, pathologist and chemist, has few superiors west of the Alleghenies, and the following conversation which occurred a few days ago between that gentleman and one of our staff, is offered, without comment, for the information of "whom it may concern:"

REPORTER.—Have you any objection to state your views in relation to a medicinal preparation which has obtained great celebrity in this country? The object is to ascertain whether the reputation is deserved or not.

DR. WHITMARSH—If I know anything about the article, I'll tell you what I think of it. How is it named?

REPORTER—PLANTATION BITTERS.

DR. WHITMARSH—Well, it is a wholesome vegetable tonic.

REPORTER—Anything else?

WHITMARSH—Yes, it has a mild aperient property, and produces a salutary effect upon the liver when that organ is diseased.

REPORTER—It contains alcohol I understand? Santa Cruz Rum.

DR. WHITMARSH—Of course it contains a diffusive stimulant. If it did not its medicinal ingredients would be comparatively inert. They are rendered operative by the alcoholic principle.

REPORTER—Supposing that theory to be correct, is Santa Cruz Rum a good article for that purpose?

DR. WHITMARSH—The best I think. It is more nutritious and far less exciting than the spirits made from grapes or grain.

REPORTER—But are stimulants really necessary at all in medical treatment?

DR. WHITMARSH—Sir, if you had ever practiced medicine you would not ask the question. They are an essential portion of the materia medica. Every intelligent member of the profession knows that. The physician who denies it is either a hypocrite or a fool.

REPORTER—Do you consider a medicated stimulant like the PLANTATION BITTERS preferable to simple alcohol? In other words, would the Santa Cruz Rum be as useful without the other ingredients as with them?

DR. WHITMARSH—Certainly not. Among those ingredients are Extract of Dandelion, one of the finest antibilious medicines I know of, Calisaya Bark, of all tonics the best, and Chamomile, an admirable stomachic. The remedial powers of these curatives is increased probably tenfold by the nutritive stimulant with which they are incorporated.

REPORTER—You seem to have a high opinion of the Bitters.

DR. WHITMARSH—I simply state facts, sir. You must draw your own conclusions.

REPORTER—May I ask if you ever prescribed PLANTATION BITTERS for your patients?

DR. WHITMARSH—I do, frequently. All that I have said to you is founded on my own experience. I never make positive statements on unsubstantial grounds.

REPORTER—I am sure of that. Excuse me for having trespassed so long on your valuable time. Good evening.

We presume the correspondents who have addressed us on the subject of PLANTATION BITTERS, will consider their questions satisfactorily answered by the remarks of Dr. Whitmarsh.

SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 13, 1872.

How Portland Got its Start.—Very few people, except it be the real "oldest inhabitants," are acquainted with the facts connected with the founding of this city. For the entertainment of such as are not familiar with the early history of this city, we furnish the following extract from an interesting article in the new Directory, prepared by S. J. McCormick, and append a condensation of facts from the same article:

"During the month of November, 1842, Hon. A. L. Lovejoy, (at present residing at Oregon City,) and a gentleman named Overton, stepped ashore at this point from an Indian canoe, whilst en route from Vancouver to Oregon City, and having examined the topography of the surrounding country, concluded at once that it was a most eligible position for a town site. Not being prepared, however, to commence clearing away the brush and timber with which their contemplated 'claim' was covered, they determined to procure the necessary outfit, tools and provisions, and return at a subsequent period for permanent settlement. True to their purpose, these hardy pioneers returned during the ensuing winter and commenced at once to clear off the land and make preparations for the erection of a log cabin, which they determined to build on a site they had chosen close to the ravine where at present stands the Portland Saw Mill, in the southern portion of the city. But before they had perfected their arrangements for the completion of their dwelling, Mr. Overton disposed of his interest in the claim to Mr. F. W. Pettygrove, who, in conjunction with Mr. Lovejoy, had the claim surveyed and the boundaries established during the summer of 1844. During the winter of the same year, Messrs. Lovejoy and Pettygrove hired a man to commence clearing off the timber and to procure logs suitable for the construction of a dwelling house; but a change was made in the location, the proprietors deeming it more prudent to commence operations nearer the center of their claim, in preference to improving at the southern extremity. Immediate preparations were made to clear off the ground adjacent to where Carter's building (corner of Front and Washington streets) at present stands; and, accordingly, a log house was erected on the spot and occupied by their employee during that winter. The building completed and a portion of the land cleared, the proprietors determined upon having a more accurate survey of their claim, and in the summer of 1845 Thomas A. Brown was employed to do so, which he did, at the same time laying off a portion of it into streets, blocks and lots—it being agreed between the partners that the lots were to be fifty feet wide by one hundred feet deep, the streets sixty feet wide, with the exception of Water street, (or, as at present known as Front street) which was to be as near sixty feet wide as the variations of the banks of the river would admit. A plat was accordingly made, and the next thought that engaged the minds of the proprietors was that of choosing a suitable name for the newly born city of the West. Mr. Lovejoy suggested that the place be called Boston, in honor of the capital of his native State, in hopes that at some future time it might rival, in commerce and importance the modern Athens. Mr. Pettygrove contended that Portland was more appropriate, inasmuch as it was at the head of steamboat navigation, and the port where would land all the freight intended for the valley of the Willamette, and all the southern portion of the Territory. In order to decide this vexed question, it was proposed by Mr. Pettygrove to toss a copper cent, which he had brought with him as a souvenir of his eastern home. This being agreed to by Mr. Lovejoy, the cent was produced, and Mr. Pettygrove proving the winner, Portland was adopted as the cognomen of the embryo city."

In 1845, Mr. Lovejoy sold his interest in the town site to Benj. Stark. In the spring of 1846 the first store was built at the corner of Washington and Front—a log building. In 1848, Pettygrove sold his interest to Daniel H. Lownsdale. There was then a small wharf at the foot of Washington street, and a slaughter house on the bank of the river just below where the Cosmopolitan Hotel now stands. Up to 1850, there was little growth, and Oregon City and Milwaukie both put forward pretensions to superiority, pr[illegible] and pr[illegible]. Portland was then spoken of as "a place twelve miles below Oregon City." December 4, 1850, the publication of the Weekly Oregonian—the first newspaper printed in Portland—was commenced by Thomas J. Dryer. The Gold Hunter was the first ocean steamer that visited the port. On St. John's Day, 1850, the first Masonic procession took place. In 1851 the growth of the city began in earnest, and it began to be known outside of the Territory. A city government was established April 7, 1851, under a charter granted by the Legislature during the session of 1850-1—Hugh D. O'Bryant being the first Mayor, and W. S. Caldwell, the first Recorder. The vote for Delegate to Congress, in 1851, was for Jo Lane, 162; W. H. Wilson, 60. The Western Star, first published at Milwaukie, was removed to Portland in 1851, and became the Times—published by John Orvis Waterman. The first brick building was erected in 1853, by W. S. Ladd. The first daily newspaper was the Daily News, the first number of which appeared April 18, 1859, published by S. A. English & Co. It lived but a little while, and was succeeded by the Daily Advertiser, published by Alonzo Leland. The latter lasted till Oct., 1862. The successive Mayors from the organization of the city government were, H. D. O'Bryant, 1851; A. C. Bonnell, 1852; S. B. Marye, 1852; Josiah Failing, 1853; W. S. Ladd, 1854; Geo. W. Vaughn, 1855; James O'Neill, 1856; James O'Neill, 1857; A. M. Starr, 1858; S. J. McCormick, 1859; Geo. C. Robbins, 1860; John M. Breck, 1861; W. H. Farrar, 1862.

Mail Robbery.—We understand that within the last few days, it has been discovered that the mails on the Oregon and California route have been violated and robbed. A number of registered letters were found under a tree, not far from Canyonville, Douglas county, among which was a letter that left Portland on the 7th inst. Mr. Underwood, Postal Agent, upon being apprised of the fact, immediately started for Canyonville to investigate the matter, and, if possible, to bring the guilty parties to justice.

A Burglar's Depot Discovered.—The Police have discovered a burglar's depot in the northern part of the city—in a cabin occupied by a man named Wilson. A large quantity of stolen goods was found—all sorts of articles from a crowbar to a toothpick. This is undoubtedly one of the hiding places of the house-breakers who have been making things lively of late in nearly all parts of the city. Wilson was arrested after an exciting chase, and lodged in jail.

Special Church Notices.—There will be preaching at the A. M. E. Zion church, Sunday morning and evening, by Rev. Daniel Jones. Sabbath school at 2 o'clock P. M.

Prof. T. F. Royal, principal of the Portland Academy and Female Seminary, will occupy the pulpit of the M. E. Church at Oregon City, on Sabbath morning and evening next.

Remains Recognized.—It is stated that the body found on Wednesday in the Columbia river was recognized as that of Andrew Schinkel, a German who, not long since came from Victoria and who has been residing on the bank of the Columbia. It is believed he was drowned while attempting to cross the river in a small boat.

Pews in the Catholic Church.—The Catholic Sentinel says: "The names of persons holding pews in the Cathedral Church of this city will be announced from the altar to-morrow (Sunday) morning. Only those who have paid their pew rent to January 1, 1872, will be considered as pew holders."

Arrived from Sitka.—The steamship Gussie Telfair, Ainsley, commander, arrived at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, from Sitka, Nanaimo and northern way ports. She brought about one hundred tons of coal from Nanaimo for the Salem Gas Light Company.

Still Solid.—Capt. Troop reported yesterday the ice gorge in the Columbia, between the Willamette and Vancouver, as still unmoved and apparently firm. During Thursday the ice broke at Vancouver and moved for about twenty minutes, but stopped again.

The Storm.—Another severe storm was upon us yesterday. Passengers who came down on the morning train from Eugene, report that the storm extended all over the upper end of the Willamet valley, and that it was the severest of the season.

Lecture.—The second lecture in the course presented by the Washington Debating Society, will be delivered next Tuesday evening by O. P. Mason, Esq. Subject: "Woman—her past, present and future."

To Sail.—The steamer Gussie Telfair will sail this evening for Sitka, by way of San Juan and Nanaimo.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

To-morrow will be the Catholic Festival of the Holy Name of Jesus.

The United States Circuit Court will convene next Monday morning.

The regular meeting of Baker Post No. 1, G. A. R., will occur this evening.

There will be a meeting of the St. Vincent de Paul Society at 4 o'clock P. M. to-morrow.

On Thursday $50 in coin was unearthed by some workmen in an old shanty in the back part of the city.

The Katy Ladd, ferry boat, is running in place of the Portland No. 1, the latter being laid up for repairs.

The Herald says there is an "oppression of expectation" in regard to the next Philharmonic concert. What a pity!

Personal.—George A. Edes, lately appointed Collector of Customs for the port and district of Sitka, will take passage for his future field of operations on board the Gussie Telfair to-day.

CHICAGO TO PORTLAND.

A HANDSOME LETTER OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

Mayor Wasserman is just in receipt of the following letter from the Chicago Committee of Relief:

Chicago Relief and Aid Society,
Standard Hall, Cor. Mich. Av. and 13th St.
Chicago, December 15th, 1871.

Hon. Philip Wasserman, Mayor City of Portland, Oregon: Dear Sir—We are again called upon to acknowledge gratefully the additional contribution of three thousand dollars from generous Portland to her sister city's suffering multitudes, which we received in your favor of the 15th ult., and for which we most heartily thank you in the name of our distressed people. On the 9th inst. we had on our books the names of 14,325 families, dependent upon us for their partial or entire support. Your city has contributed magnificently for the relief of these impoverished citizens, and we shall long remember the munificence of our kind brethren on the Pacific coast.

Our city is being rebuilt as rapidly as the situation permits, pending the restoration of our titles by approximate legislation. Our streets are full of laborers removing the excavations and building temporary and permanent structures, and next year Chicago will be the busiest city in the world, if indeed it is not now. Piles of brick and lumber block our streets and the click of trowel and hammer resounds throughout the burned district. In this appalling calamity our people have been cheered and sustained by the unexampled generosity of our fellow men throughout the civilized world, prominent in which is the large hearted contribution of your people. Very truly yours,

GEO. M. PULLMAN,
Treasurer.

C. G. Hammond.

A printed circular accompanying the above letter, states the total amount of subscriptions received by the Committee, Nov. 7th, 1871, at $2,051,023 55, and the Committee was, on that date, providing for 60,000 people; had built over 4,000 houses for the homeless, accommodating 20,000 people, and proposed to build 3,000 more; to build and furnish these would cost, as estimated, $1,250,000.

AMUSEMENTS.

Literary and Musical Entertainment.—This evening Prof. L. L. Rogers, of Salem, will deliver a lecture at the Hall street M. E. Church on "Utility." Prof. McGibeny will furnish some of his choice pieces of music. The proceeds are for the benefit of the Hall street charge. Admission, 50 cents; children, 25 cents. The following is the programme for the evening: First, Glee, "Home Again Returning;" second, Prayer, Rev. G. W. Izer; third, Chant, "Hear, Father;" fourth, lecture, "Utility," Prof. L. L. Rogers; fifth, trio, "Good Night."

Oro Fino Theater.—About the hour of opening last evening there was a tremendous rain storm prevailing; but notwithstanding there was a fair audience at the theater, and the play—Narcisse, the Vagabond—went off quite as spiritedly as on the first evening of its production. It will be put on again at the matinee at 2 o'clock this afternoon. To-night the popular sensational and spectacular drama of Nick of the Woods, in which Mr. Waldron will personate the great characters of Nick of the Woods or the Jibbenainosay, Bloody Nathan and Reginald Ashburn—Mrs. Waldron in the character of Tello Doe.

Donation of Clothing.—Yesterday, Mr. J. L. Atkinson, of this city, received the following letter of acknowledgment from H. Ludington, Mayor of the city of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, under date of Dec. 9, 1871:

"Dear Sir: The box of clothing contributed by the ladies of the Third Ward of your city has arrived and been placed with the Relief Committee to be distributed to the sufferers. You will please to return my thanks to the ladies for their generous donation to the suffering and destitute people of our State."

Order of the Eastern Star.—The following persons have been duly elected and initiated as officers of Electa Chapter No. 3, Order of the Eastern Star, for the ensuing year: Mrs. Lizzie DuBois, W. M.; Mrs. Emma Holden, W. A. M.; Mrs. India Ann Hicks, W. Treas.; Mrs. Mary E. Ford, W. Secretary; Mrs. Jones, W. Conductress; Miss Christine DeLin, W. A. Conductress; Miss Celina Brotherton, Warden; Bro. A. P. DeLin, Sentinel; Bro. U. E. Hicks, Worthy Patron.

Still at the East.—A letter from Dr. Atkinson, dated New York, December 15th, states that he had been spending some time in the New England States for the purpose of setting forth the wants of Home Mission and Educational Work in Oregon, and that he would probably remain some weeks longer, perhaps till the 1st February.

Mail Arrival.—A very large letter mail arrived by the California overland route yesterday, and during the afternoon the Postoffice window was crowded with anxious inquirers for letters.

Examination Postponed.—The man Wilson, arrested at the burglars' depot, will have a preliminary examination on Monday on two charges.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

The Agents of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Boston, Mass., (make no tempting promises) to induce a man to insure, "and then squeeze him because they can." But talk Insurance for the protection it gives—see Joseph Middlemiss, Supt. of Agencies for the Pacific Coast, 8 Front st, Central Block—he talks Endowments for the safe, not speculative investment, they offer, coupled with the security of a life policy. Mr. Middlemiss makes no promises direct or implied, beyond this—The New England will annually return to each policy holder his exact proportion of the surplus after settling the business of each year. See the Agents of this Company, hunt them up. The economy of management and its experience for above one quarter of a century, and the security of the State Law of Massachusetts, make it the most advantageous Company to transact business with. The Supt. of Agencies, 8 Front st, in this city, courts the acquaintance of every insurable man, to instruct him gratis on this all important question of insurance. Get a circular.

The New England Mutual Life Insurance Company was incorporated in 1835, and is therefore the oldest purely Mutual Life Insurance Company in the United States; it has cash assets of over $10,000,000, and is the only Company on the Pacific Coast governed by the Massachusetts Non-Forfeiture Law, offering all the advantages of age and prudent management, its average expenses being lower than any other Company in the United States. It also offers protection against forfeiture by virtue of the Massachusetts Non-Forfeiture Law, which is a feature of great importance, and should be carefully considered by all persons seeking insurance. Office,

JOSEPH MIDDLEMISS,
Supt. of Agencies
Central Block, No. 8 Front Street, Portland.

Call, and see him, and get a circular. Applications may be made either personally, or by letter through the Postoffice.

TESTIMONIALS.

We the undersigned having been the recipients of the services of Mrs. M. C. White in teaching the science of Music on the Pianoforte, take pleasure in giving a hearty Testimonial that we have employed her in our families as a teacher of her "New Method of Instruction," and that it has proved superior to any method we have ever known. And that although the first cost may be a trifle greater than some others, we believe it to be in the aggregate much cheaper, beside being a great economy in point of time. We therefore, take pleasure in recommending her to the patronage of all who may be desirous of obtaining a musical education, as a very superior instructor.

To those who desire to know more about it before incurring any expense, we give a cordial invitation to call at our house and interview her pupils.

For reference see advertisement.

NAT. H. LANE, East Portland.

East Portland, Jan. 3, 1872.

Mrs. M. C. White—Respected Madam—Having heard of your System of teaching the Pianoforte, known as the Robins American Method, and having been present a few days since, at the exercises of one of your pupils, Miss Lane, of East Portland, I was much pleased and exceedingly gratified, at the perfect performance of the most difficult pieces, (such as Gottschalk Bango, etc) and this after the short term of six months tuition.

Allow me to express my approbation of your System of your Instruction, and with my best wishes for your success allow me to subscribe myself,

Yours Respectfully,
TH. PARROT, Prof. of Music, and Leader of the East Portland Band.

Winter-Proof Systems.

[illegible] but the human frame requires something more than these to render it winter-proof. The inner man, as well as the outer surface of the body, must be protected. The raw, moist, chilly winds which prevail at this season transpierce the warmest clothing, and are apt to affect the health unfavorably, both through the pores and the respiratory organs. The surest way to avert the evil is to strengthen the internal machine, and thus enable it to repel the devitalizing influence of unwholesome weather. Enrich the blood, gently stimulate the circulation, regulate the bowels, invigorate the stomach, tone the liver, and brace the nerves with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and no condition of the atmosphere, however inclement, no variation of the barometer or thermometer, however sudden, will have power to disorder the system thus fortified in advance, and put in perfect working order. Damp and cold, acting upon a sensitive or feeble organization, may produce consumption, diptheria, neuralgia, rheumatism, dyspepsia, liver complaint, low nervous fever, or intermittent fever; the importance of rendering the system impervious to these two destructive elements is therefore obvious. Persons in delicate health, or who are at all liable to be injuriously affected by atmospheric influences, should take the Bitters daily throughout the winter and spring. In this way dangerous diseases may be warded off, and a condition of perfect health preserved by individuals of comparatively feeble physique, while those more robust, who scoff at precautions, are suffering the penalty of their recklessness in hospitals and sick rooms.

An Angel in the House

How sweet it were, if without feeble fright,
Or, dying of the dreadful, beauteous sight,
An angel came to us, and we could bear
To see him issue from the silent air
At evening in our room, and bend on ours
His divine eyes, and bring us from his bowers
News of dear friends, and children who have never
Been dead indeed—as we shall know forever.
Alas! we think not that we daily see
About our hearths, angels that are to be,
Or may be, if they will, and we prepare
Their souls and ours to meet in happy air—
A child, a friend, a wife, whose soft heart sings
In unison with ours, breeding its future wings.
—Leigh Hunt.

EVENINGS AT HOME.—There is no breastwork against evil, and no school of virtue and moral worth, like the good home. And the good home is not merely that which furnishes edible dinners and well kept rooms and clean beds, but that which furnishes most satisfaction, refreshing and joy to all its inmates. And evening is the only time when all the members of the family circle meet together, and can mingle in happy and joyous intercourse. The occasion should be provided for as it usually is not. Our home-keepers should take the hint from those who furnish public entertainments and lavish thought and ingenuity enough upon the occasion to make it so attractive and delightful and satisfying, that every member of the household will feel the happier for it, and look forward for its return with expectancy, and beyond the reach of the thousand temptations to spend the evening hours elsewhere. Exactly how this is to be done must be answered by house keepers for themselves. They have resources and ingenuity enough, will they but once see the importance of the thing, and set their wits at work to develop the hint into a beautiful and joyous reality. We do not mean that everybody should spend every evening at home. Let there be all profitable and entertaining going. Get all the delight and good that plays and concerts and lectures and parties can afford. Still it will be found that these great public entertainments often excite more than they delight or edify, and, if often indulged in, produce weariness and dissipation and fatigue. The evening at home furnishes the fitting alternate and contrast to these public entertainments, and each is enjoyed the more for the other. And to make the evening at home truly delightful, every resource of culture and art may be rightly invoked. Why not have a succession of evening entertainments, giving one to reading, another to music, a third to conversation, a fourth to a drama, and a fifth to miscellaneous plays. Why not import into the home circle some of the talent to amuse and entertain and edify which is all about waiting for invitation? A [illegible] family can not do all alone two or three [illegible] ly effect. Were our people [illegible] part of the time and interest and means they now throw away on worthless excitements and utter frivolities, in making their homes truly helpful and happy, we should prevent half the crimes, and stop half the vices of society at their source.—Golden Age.

A poet's desperation is finely illustrated in these lines:—

I stood upon the ocean's briny shore,
And with a fragile reed I wrote
Upon the sand—
"Agnes, I love thee!"
[illegible] waves [illegible] by and blotted out
The fair impression.
Frail reed! Cruel wave! Treacherous sand!
I'll trust ye no more.
But with giant hand I'll pluck
From Norway's frozen shore,
Her tallest pine and dip its top
Into the crater of Vesuvius,
[illegible] heavens
I'll write—
"Agnes, I love thee!"
And I would like to see any
[illegible] wave [illegible]

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

PORTLAND, FRIDAY EVENING, Jan. 12, 1872.

Gold in New York 109.

Portland Legal Tender quotations 90½ buying; 91½ selling.

Mail advices received to-day from New York give information of the breaking up of the "locking up" clique, and consequently an easier money market, ruling, with rice buoyant and higher.

The steamer Gussie Telfair arrived this morning from Sitka. Her manifest can be found below.

The bark Jane A. Falkinburg is not in the river so far as we can learn, though her consignees expected she would have quick dispatch on her arrival at Honolulu. It is not at all probable that she will have much over half a cargo.

The steamer Gussie Telfair is announced to leave to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock for Sitka and intermediate ports.

A prominent Front street firm made a shipment to-day of 100 bags bran, by railroad, to a town in Washington county. This appears to us rather a singular shipment to be made into an agricultural country, but is on a par with many others to which our attention has been cited, where Potatoes, Butter and like articles have been sent into several of the interior counties from here, to fill orders.

That the duties on Rice will be removed or greatly modified is conceded by all commercial papers East. The duties at present are 1½ cents per pound on uncleaned, 2 cents on half cleaned, and 2½ cents on cleaned, with 10 per cent. additional when not imported directly from the producing country. What will be the effect on our market if the duty is modified or removed, it is difficult at present to say. Some claim that the consumption will show a very large increase, and consequently that prices will [illegible] virtually at about where they now are; while others contend, which is the most [illegible] to us, that it will [illegible] in increased consumption, but this increase will be met by increased importation, causing prices to rule lower. Others contend, however, that this increased consumption, taken in connection with the increased consumption in Great Britain and the marked falling off in production in the Southern States, together with the activity now prevailing in tonnage, will cause an advance in [illegible], and also cause prices to advance a shade in producing countries, owing to the increased demand. The increased consumption of rice in Great Britain is very large. For the first 11 months of 1868 the consumption was 46,910 tons; in 1869, 53,650 tons; 1870, 64,050 tons; 1871, 88,570 tons. The production of South Carolina in 1850 was 159,930,613 lbs; in 1860 119,100,528 lbs; in 1870, 70,000,000 lbs; and in 1871 the crop was estimated at still less than the yield of 1870.

At the time we gave the Custom House statistics for this (Willamette) District we were unable to obtain the Astoria Custom House statistics, for 1871, for the District of Oregon, but by last evening's mail we were placed in possession of them. The statistics of this port are incomplete without them, as many vessels having merchandise on for this port enter and clear at Astoria:

[illegible] Merchandise.

HARDWARE.—The New York Shipping List of Dec. 16 says: [illegible] goods continue in good demand, and prices of all kinds are very firm, with a general upward tendency, [illegible] materials continuing to advance. Tin Pie Plates have advanced from $5 35 to $6 for 9-inch, and Pocket Oilers from $2 65 to $3 for 2 quarts (regular [illegible] per cent.) and other sizes of both in proportion. Copper Pits have advanced from 38 to 40 cents, and solder Coppers, from 40 to 42 cents, net. High and Low Brass of all sizes and numbers has advanced fully 2 cents, bringing all Nos. to No. 28 High to 3?b, and Low to more. Brass Wire has advanced to 38c for 0 to 20, High and 42 for Low, and Copper to 48, and all other numbers in proportion, all less 10 per cent. Copper Rivets and Burs are [illegible] higher on each number—as follows:

Nos.	8	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	52c	53c	55c	57c	59c	61c	63c	71c

Braziers' Rivets are now 46c—Tubing, including English, Scotch and extra Patterns fancy Tubing, is quoted 20 higher. [illegible] also 2c higher for all numbers. German Silver Market Metal is now quoted 4 per cent. 12 inch to No. 26 65c and 80 for Wire, less 10 per cent. German Silver Tubing 4 per cent, 90c and up to $1 70 for No. 20 [illegible] Brass pail ears, 35c [illegible] under 500 62 list. Brass Rods No. 37 [illegible] 42 less 10 per [illegible] 10 pc. Brass kettles have not [illegible] said 55c, or 6c less in lots of 500 lbs. The advance in Plumbers' Earthen Ware, referred to in our last, was not consummated. Axes and Hatchets of all descriptions are very scarce and firm. Bright Wire goods are steady at 50 and 10 per cent discount. Wrought Iron [illegible] List 10 pc on 2½ [illegible] Ely's English Water Proof Caps are very scarce and the makers are nine months behind their orders. Peter Wright's Anvils, Vises, Chains, &c, are very scarce and orders are not taken except at prices to be fixed at time of delivery—it is said that the [illegible] enough to keep them going—Anvils of all sizes are held higher, and in a measure are nominal on account of their scarcity. We may quote P. W. [illegible]. Trace Chains have advanced in Birmingham to 18/2d for 6½-10-2, costing [illegible] gold, to lay. English Coil advanced to 29s for ¾ inch, and we quote here 7¾@8c gold. English Pocket Cutlery advanced in Sheffield [illegible] doz. on common goods, and table [illegible] German Coil and Halter Chain will also be advanced [illegible] at 1st January. It will be seen by these advices that all foreign goods must necessarily be higher [illegible].

HIDES.—The market rules firm for sound Dry at 15c; Green 6c.

TOBACCO.—Eastern advices state that four members of the Ways and Means Committee favor the reduction of the Tobacco Tax to 16c ? lb on all grades.

Ordinance No. 1126

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND AN ORDINANCE [illegible] the construction and operation of Street Railways in the City of Portland.

The City of Portland do ordain as follows:

Section 1. That section 2 of ordinance No. [illegible] [illegible] in the City of Portland, [illegible] September 1871, [illegible] be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 2. The construction of the railways herein provided for shall [illegible] within one year from the [illegible] day of September [illegible] and the same shall be completed [illegible] on North First, First and [illegible] First street [illegible] Northern boundary of the city to the Southern boundary thereof [illegible] as far North and as far South as the said streets [illegible] shall be graded, and the [illegible] from the intersection thereof with North First street to the West boundary of the city, or as far West as the same [illegible] graded, shall be completed within eighteen months from said [illegible] day of September, 1871, and the railways upon all [illegible] streets running northerly and southerly and on [illegible] street running easterly and westerly, shall be completed every year thereafter until the railways upon all streets named herein shall be completed; and in case the boundary of the city shall be extended at any time within fifteen years after the passage of this Ordinance, in any direction, when the rights hereby conferred by the city upon said [illegible] shall also extend to the limits so as extended [illegible] in interest shall be required to extend their lines of railway to the limits as extended, so fast as the grading of the streets shall proceed.

Provided, That [illegible] the first of January, 1873, the said [illegible] shall [illegible] notice to the Common Council [illegible] the street running east and west and the street running north and south on which it is intended to construct the railway as herein provided during the year ensuing the date of such notice; and the railway on such streets so designated, shall be completed within the said ensuing year as far as the said streets shall be graded; and on or before the first of January of each succeeding year thereafter a like notice shall be given to the Common Council designating the street or streets upon which the railway is to be constructed the next ensuing year, and so on, and as in the case before mentioned, the railway on such streets so designated shall be constructed the year ensuing the notice relative thereto, as far as the said street or streets shall be graded, until the entire system of railways provided for herein shall be completed.

Provided further, That said railway, when laid down and completed upon any street or streets herein named and as herein provided, shall be extended upon such street or streets whenever the graded portion of the street shall be extended; such extension of railway upon any street to correspond and to [illegible] the street improvements on said street.
